AMERICAN IN FRANCE TO BUILD PLANT FOR MANUFACTURING GUNS

Col. Isaac N. Lewis, Formerly of Fayette County Big Man of the Allies

BELGIANS USED HIS GUNS

Wonderful Defense of Liege Made Partly Through Use of Lewis' Weapon—Germans Wanted Exclusive Rights to Use His Output.

Colonel Isaac N. Lewis, U. S. A., retired a native Fayette county man, has been authorized by the French government to construct an ordnance factory at St. Etienne for the manufacture of the Lewis rapid-fire gun. Colonel Lewis' invention was submitted to the United States war department while the Fayette county man was on the active list but his invention was rejected. Later, Mr. Lewis submitted the invention to the Germans who quickly grasped the importance of the invention and asked for exclusive rights which were rejected.

Colonel Lewis was born at High House, in German township, and a brother, Homer Lewis, still resides there. He went to Kansas to visit his sister, Mrs. Hiram Hackney, and there began teaching school. Later he was successful in his application for admission to West Point from Kansas and made an enviable record as an officer in the United States army.

Commenting on Colonel Lewis' invention and his selection by the French government to build an ordnance factory at St. Etienne, the Chicago Journal says:

"Col. Isaac N. Lewis, U. S. A., retired, who has been authorized by the French government to construct an ardnance factory at St. Etinne for the manufacture of the Lewis rapid-fire gun, is an American, whose invention was submitted to the War Department while he was on the active list, and was not accepted. He then tried Germany, which quickly realizing the importance of the weapon, asked for the sole right to use and manufacture the gun, but was re-

ASKS $100,000 FROM THE OPERATION OF OIL WELL

A claim for $100,000 is involved in two suits filed at Washington by Richard Gladden against the Forrest Oil company and South Penn Oil company. In one action he claims $52,500 and in the other $47,500. Gladdin avers that these amounts are due under the terms of leases covering a period of 15 years, as royalties from producing gas wells.

The lease involved in one action which covers land in Cecil township near McDonald, was originally held by the Western Pennsylvania Gas company and assigned by it to the Venture Oil company and by it to the Forrest Oil company. Gladden claims that the leased property is now operated by the South Penn Oil company, but that he has not the information to show by what authority the South Penn Oil company is interested.

SOUTH BROWNSVILLE WILL VOTE ON $50,000 SCHOOL BOND ISSUE

District Now Eight Rooms Short of Actual Need—Public Meetings Arranged to Explain Project.

South Brownsville citizens will be asked to vote May 16 on a bond issue for $50,000 to complete a new school there and for the building of additional schools as found necessary. This is a revival of an issue which was voted upon last year and turned down. It is declared by the school board of South Brownsville that the borough is badly in need of new school arrangements. They state the borough is now eight rooms short of caring for the present enrollment, not counting those who will enter next year. Public meetings for explaining the project are contemplated previous to the vote on the question.

1915 HEALTHIEST YEAR IN HISTORY

Pennsylvania State Department of Health Makes Valuable Report

REDUCTION IN DISEASES

The year 1915 was the healthiest in the history of Pennsylvania according to a report which has just been made to Governor Brumbaugh by Commissioner of Health Samuel G. Dixon. The vital statistics for the year 1915 show a very considerable reduction in deaths from diptheria, measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, tuberculosis and typhoid fever.

The comparative figures of 1906 and 1915 for these diseases are as follows:

	1906	1915
Diphtheria	2,438	1,634
Measles	1,463	536
Scarlet Fever	577	295
Whooping Cough	1,550	580
Tuberculosis	9,258	8,777
Typhoid Fever	3,917	1,020

These reductions in the actual number of deaths have occurred despite the fact that in 1915 the population of the State was 1,242,716 greater than in 1906.

The State Department of Health has directed specific efforts for a number of years toward the prevention of these diseases and the reduction in the death rate is an evidence of the value of the application of preventative medicine.

Ten years ago Pennsylvania first began the collection of vital statistics. In that year the population of the State was 7,141,766, the death rate was sixteen per thousand inhabitants; the death rate for 1915 was thirteen and eight tenths per thou-

MERCHANTS ARRANGING FOR CONVENTION HERE

Retailers From All Parts of the County Expected to Come Next Thursday for Day's Sessions Here—Local Committees Busy

Merchants from all parts of Washington county are making plans for attending the county convention of retailers to be held in Charleroi at the high school building on next Thursday, March 16. Special arrangements are under way with the Pittsburg Railways company to furnish two special cars.

At Finleyville the merchants from Claysville, West Alexander and other B. & O points will be picked up.

The committee in charge of the program has finished a portion of its work and will soon have the plans for the day ready for publication. In the morning the purely business session will be held and all matters left over from the Washington meeting last fall will be completed. The afternoon will be given over to speaking while in the evening a smoker will be held.

Local committees are working hard on the plans for the convention. Guy Moffitt, Esq., is the chairman of the general committee.

In addition to the merchants and retailers from different parts of the county Monongahela valley men are expected to be present from nearby points. Part of the program is being worked up under the auspices of the Washington Board of Trade, the body which instituted the movement for a county association.

WAGE INCREASES ARE ACCEPTED BY MINERS

Representatives of 300,000 Bituminous Workers Pleased With Offer of Operators For Advance—White Jubilant

The representatives of the 300,000 bituminous miners in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Western Pennsylvania late Wednesday afternoon unanimiusly acepted the offer made by the operators which brings about a substantial increase in the wages of the miners in those states. This action was taken in the joint conference of miners and operators at New York which heard the report the subcommittee had already agreed upon.

The Indiana delegation did not vote, but John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, exercised his power and assumed responsibility for the Indiana miners.

The new scale increases the mine run rate for picked coal three cents per ton. John P. White, the miners' leader, was jubilant over the success of the conference. "The increase granted the miners is the largest single advance in wages ever made in the history of the mine industry," he said.

"THE WOMAN IN 47" AT MAJESTIC THEATRE TODAY

"The Woman in 47," a photodrama of intensely absorbing power and wonderful realism will be shown today at the Majestic Theatre and Alice Brady, the star appears in the part of the Italian girl, Viola. The play is a thrilling story of the trials and temptations to which she was subjected on her rrival in this country to meet and marry her lover, after escaping from the clutches of a cruel and gasping uncle in Italy. It is told with such vivid realism and such thrilling scenes and climaxes that almost unconsciously the minds and hearts of the spectators are held in a merciless grip until the final happy ending.

PROSPERITY REIGNS IN PIGEON CREEK VALLEY

Mines Operating Without Intermission—Marianna Region Assuming Old Time Appearance—Present Indications Point to Epochal Period.

The conditions now prevalent in Bentleyville and the Pigeon Creek valley in general are those of prosperity. The Acme mines of the Pittsburg and Westmoreland Coal company at Bentleyville are working almost without intermission and the heavy pays paid every two weeks to the employes are making the business conditions flourishing. Building is also being pushed with added impetus in the community.

At the Ellsworth mines above Bentleyville the aspect is bright and prosperous. The war is bringing unparalleled prosperity to the Pigeon Creek valley, for the mining industry is busily occupied with orders to plants manufacturing war implements and other stuff to be used by the warring nations. At Ellsworth there is little or no intermission in labor and exceptionally large pays are also being paid every two weeks at the office of the Ellsworth Collieries company. The Cokeburg mines of the same company are also operating full blast with good payrolls.

At the upper terminal of the valley Marianna is again assuming signs of returning prosperity, something that has not been evinced for a long time. It is reported that many of the requirements for men in Marianna are left unfilled due to the prosperity general throughout the country along with the general call for more men everywhere.

The present indications point to the fact that the coming spring and summer will be unparalleled for prosperity in the commercial history of the valley.

GOVERNMENT ESTABLISHING CRIBS AT RIVER PROPERTY AT THE LOCK

Effort Being Made to Protect the Bank—Construction Work Stopped By High River.

Until stopped by high water work progressed rapidly at Lock No. 4 on the construction of cribs and side walks which will be built from the lock proper to the government yards, a distance of 500 to 600 feet. This work was begun about two weeks ago.

Dredging is about completed and 200 feet of the cribbing is under way. Suspension was forced this week by reason of the high water. As soon as the river recedes activities will be resumed. This is not necessarily a part of the lock rebuilding work at the lock, but a general improvement being made by the govrnment. The purpose is to protect the entire bank

Jones & Laughlin Officials Consider Condition of Wreckage at Lock

MAY RECOVER LOST COAL

Possibility That When River Recedes Much of Cargo Will be Raised From Below Dam Where it Was Sunk Wednesday Morning.

That the two steel barges and considerable of the coal supposed to have been lost when the tow of the Towboat Sailor went over the dam at Lock No. 4 Wednesday morning may be saved is the opinion of Capt. Robert Elsey and other officials of the Jones and Laughlin company. Capt. Elsey with others viewed the scene of the Wednesday morning wreckage Wednesday at No. 4, and after his inspection expressed his confidence that the barges would not be a total wreck.

The steel barges are probably the stunchest built of any type in the Monongahela river coal shipping trade. When they went over the dam they were given a pretty hard bump and one that would end the usefulness of any ordinary barge. But the fact that they are made of steel of a fine quality served to prevent them from complete destruction.

The river is still raging, but at 12 o'clock Wednesday night after attaining a stage of 25 feet it began to fall slowly and this morning there had been considerable of a drop. As soon as possible work will be started by the Jones and Laughlin company on raising the two barges. If they are in as good condition as is anticipated they will immediately repair them and replace them in service.

Government men at Lock No. 4 have as yet been unable to ascertain what damage has been done to the dam. However they do not now consider it will be anything great.

NEW FIRM MAY OPERATE MONONGAHELA PAPER MILL

It is reported from Pittsburg by brokers that articles of agreement have been signed whereby a half interest formerly controlled by the Miller-Coulson firm in the Union paper mills at Monongahela had passed to other hands. It is further stated that the capital of the company will be materially increased and its output increased.

The Union paper mill is one of the landmarks of Monongahela. It was erected over half a century ago and for many years was operated by R. Culbertson & Son, later passing to the firm of Culbertson & Hartrick, finally passing to other hands, who operated it in an indifferent manner. Of late years it has been in the hands of the Miller-Coulson company, and the product has been cement sacks for which there seemed to be a very large demand. Somehow or other the operation of the plant never seemed to be a great success and it has been idle for a number of months.

THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM

The conference now being held in Washington to consider with the Interstate Commerce Commission the freight congestion on the eastern trunk lines is dealing with a difficult problem. There have been freight congestions in the past, the most notable being that of 1906, but the present situation has been aggravated by a new factor. This new factor is the unprecedented rush of exports, which occurred at a time when the merchant ships of one great carrying nation were bottled up, and [illegible] the merchantment of other nations have been commandered for troop ships and the transportation of war supplies.

There are honest differences as opinion, according to the Pittsburg Gazette Times as to which side, carrier or shipper, is most to blame for the severity of the congestion, and naturally there are differences as to the best means for affording relief. On one point, however, there is absolute agreement, namely, that it is to the best interest of both sides that freight should be promptly moved to destination and placed in the hands of the consignee. Throughout 1914 the railroads of the United States had an average of more than 200,000 idle cars on their sidings. During the first nine months of 1915 the number of idle cars ranged from 327,000 to 183,000. Then came the great rush of traffic, and during the past five months there has been a scarcity of cars, with numerous embargoes on shipments to Atlantic ports. The inconvenience to shippers, however, has been not so much a lack of rolling stock as a lack of normal use of cars. The latter have been loaded, rushed to Eastern terminal points and then been permitted to lie there unloaded.

The remedy proposed by the railroads is to cut down the free storage time allowed on freight in terminals and in increase the demurrage charges on cars not unloaded after a fixed period of time. An additional remedy is suggested that when conditions like the present arise an embargo be placed on shipments at points of origin, but the railroads are in doubt as to whether the commission would permit such action. The remedy suggested by the shippers is more track facilities, more lighters and an i mproved system.

To the layman it would seem that the application of remedies suggested by both sides would tend greatly to solve the problem. Surely the railroads, having carried freights to seaboard terminals, should not stand the cost of storage and should not be compelled to hold unloaded cars, awaiting adequate ocean tonnage. If the cost of delay was borne by shippers, the latter would not be so free to blockade railroad terminals by forwarding additional freights. On the other hand the railroads themselves have been impressed with the fast that improvement in terminals has not kept pace with the wonderful growth of traffic at the chief freight-producing centers of the country. These terminals have been likened to the neck of a bottle. If the "neck" becomes clogged, then the congestion backs up over the entire system. The country is well supplied with main lines and branches. What it needs now is improved terminal facilities. But the railroads should not be held responsible for an inadequate mercantile marines, and shippers should not insist upon normal conditions at a time when the world's commerce has suffered a dislocation never before equaled.

Pennsylvania had its healthiest year in 1915, according to genial Dr. Dixon, the efficient head of the Health Department of the Keystone state. This is good peace time news. The world ought to take note and profit by the example set instead of trying to kill off the population. Dr. Dixon is directing the best state health organization in the United States, and considering the conditions else here, the statement might consistently be enlarged to include the rest of the world. The success of the Pennsylvania State Department of Health is due to the [illegible] and energetic methods followed. One of the noteworthy features in the whole system and one that has had a big effect is the campaign of education. Dr. Dixon doesn't bother about ethics but offers wholesome advice from a physician's standpoint to the inhabitants of the state at large. The state and the department are to be complimented upon Pennsylvania's wonderful showing.

Influencing owners of vacant lots to build as one means of attracting new families to town is a plan for improvement that has already been considered by the Charleroi Business Men's Association. This idea suggests others. Parking places are few and far between in Charleroi, but there are enough awaiting improvement. A dash of green or a spray of red adds surprisingly to the appearance of a place and forms a mighty pleasing contrast with the dusty brown of a paved street. Color lends enchantment and it is easy to obtain color. A little bit of effort, a little bit of grading, the sowing of a little grass, the planting of a few flowers, will work wonders.

SPEERS' MAN HONORED BY FRIENDS ON 58TH BIRTHDAY

Frank Beam was honored by his friends of the John Wesley Bible class at Speers Wednesday night by a surprise party in celebration of his 58th birthday. Mr. Beam was enticed away from his home by a committee meeting of the class. The committee found it necessary to return to his home and upon opening the door he held members of the class seated about a table. An evening of enjoyment was spent. Several short talks were given and the pastor of the Speers' M. E. church, on behalf of the class presented Mr. Beam with a fine gold watch chain. Mrs. Beam served a dinner.

In Clayton Hamilton's "On the Trail of Stevenson" is this quaint passage between the boy and his nurse, Alison Cunningham:

"When little Louis was about five years old he did something naughty and 'Cummy' stood him up in a corner and told him he would have to stay there for ten minutes; then she left the room. At the end of the allotted period she returned and said, 'Time's up, Master Lou; you may come out now.' But the little boy stood motionless in his penitential corner. 'That's enough; time's up,' repeated Cummy. And then the child [illegible] raised his hand, and, with a strange light in his eyes. 'Hush,' he said. 'I'm telling myself a story.'"

Origin of a Japanese Dance.

The origin of the Kume-mai, the dance performed at the coronation of the mikado, is traced to Jimmu Tenno, an early hero, who while on his eastern expedition found a certain chieftain called Tsuchigumo most obstinate in his resistance and unsubduable. Thereupon he ordered O Kume Nushino Mikoto to entice out the chieftain, to whom sake was offered and dances were shown, with the result that finally he was overcome and slain. The descendants of O Kume Nushino Mikoto put this fact into songs and music, from which sprang the dance.—Argonaut

From the Ship's Well.

An old lady on board a vessel observed two sailors pumping up water to wash the decks, and, the captain being near, she accosted him as follows.

"Well, that's clever. It's so much better than the nasty sea water, which I always dislike so."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Fate of a Duchess.

We have had excellent morals drawn from the substantial waist of the Venus of Milo for the admonition of the fashionable woman. But what can we say about the Duchess de Mazarin, who (G. ANCIENT ANESTHETICS.

Nepenthe and Other Agents Were Used by Old Time Surgeons.

Those who imagine that surgical knowledge began with later generations and that the discovery of chloroform revolutionized the science should read an article published by Dr. J. de Fenton in the South African Journal of Science.

Various anesthetizing media and methods were well known both in antiquity and during the middle ages. Homer mentions the anesthetic effects of nepenthe; Herodotus states that the Scythians obtained similar effects from the vapors of hemp, produced by throwing hemp seed on hot stones. A Chinese physician of the third century, B. C., gave his patients a preparation of hemp to make them insensible during surgical operations.

The most important anesthetic of ancient and medieval times was, however, wine of mandragora, the use of which is mentioned by a great number of early writers and is referred to by Shakespeare. More recently, in the year 1760, the German surgeon, Weiss, better known as Albinus, amputated the foot of Augustus III., king of Poland, while under the influence of mandragora.

Two other anesthetizing agencies were employed in very early times, arterial compression and hypnotism.

BIG LOAVES OF BREAD.

In France They Are Made From Four to Six Feet In Length.

The biggest loaves of bread baked to be eaten are those made in France and Italy. In the case of the pipe bread of the latter country the loaves are between two feet and three feet in length and occasionally even longer, while the French people make their loaves in the shape of very long rolls of bread, ranging from four feet to five feet and in a few instances even to six feet in length.

Bread in Paris is distributed almost exclusively by women. These go to the various bakehouses at 5:30 a. m. and spend about an hour in brushing the long loaves with special brushes. When their load is cleaned of grit and dust the porteuse de pain goes the round to the customers.

Customers who live in flats have their loaves propped up against the doors of their apartments. Shopkeepers, restaurateurs and other customers who have entrances to their premises in the street find their portions of the staff of life leaning against their front doors when they take down the shutters. The wages of these bread carriers vary from 2 shillings to 2s. 6d. a day, their work being generally over at 10 or 12 o'clock in the morning.—London Tit-Bits.

Weighing Machines.

Weighing machines and scales of some kind were in use 1800 B. C., for it is said that Abraham at that time "weighed out" 400 shekels of silver, current money, with the merchant to Ephron, the Hittite, as payment for a piece of land, including the cave and all the standing timber "in the field and in the fence." This is said to be the earliest transfer of land of which any record survives and in which the payment was made in the presence of witnesses. The original form of the weighing scale was probably a bar suspended from the middle with a board or shell suspended from each end, one to contain the weight, the other to contain the matter to be weighed. The steelyard was probably so called from the material of which it was made and from its former length It is also known as the Roman balance and is of great antiquity.

FOR BRONCHITIS, SEVERE COUGHS COLDS AND WHOOPING COUGH

Make the Best Medicine at Home-- 128 Teaspoonsful for 50 Cents

Money spent for the old style ready-made medicine usually sold in bottles holding only 2 to 2½ ounces (16 to 20 teaspoonsful) is largely wasted, because most of them are composed principally of sugar and water. Yet you have to pay the same price as if it were all medicine. Stop wasting this money. You can make a better remedy for bronchial affections, at home at one-fifth the cost. Merely go to Piper's pharmacy and ask for 2 ounces (50c worth) of Schiffman's New Concentrated Expectorant, which they guarantee will give perfect satisfaction or money will be refunded. Mix this with one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of boiling water, which makes a full pint (128 teaspoonsful.) This new, simple, pleasant remedy is guaranteed to relieve the worst cough or cold, Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Hoarseness and Whooping Cough, One bottle will make enough home-made medicine to probably supply the whole family. After Your Child's Bath because nurses and mothers have learned after twenty years experience that its habitual use, after the bath, keeps children's skin free from irritation and soreness.

You Should Use Nothing But

It is agreeable to the most delicate skin, and is the only powder that should be used every day on infants and children, as a great deal of skin soreness is caused by the use of highly perfumed powders. Mother's own toilet powder is not adapted to the delicate skin of a child, while Comfort Powder is especially made for children.

Sykes' Comfort Powder is not a plain talcum powder, but a highly medicated preparation, which if used daily will keep a child's skin smooth, healthy, free from odors, chafing, itching and all irritations.

STUBBORN ECZEMA HEALED BY AMOLOX

We are daily receiving letters of praise from people who have been cured by Amolox. Many of them tell how, for years, they have tried different remedies and doctors in the vain effort to find relief. Some become discouraged and lose all hope of ever being cured. E. R. Frisbee, 187 Sycomore St., Mansfield, O., writes: "Our baby's face was covered with eczema scales, sores and scabs. She was a pitiable sight. We tried everything. Took her to Pittsburg doctors but were unable to find any relief until we used Amolox. It cured her within a short time."

Amolox ointment will quickly heal pimples on the face, red nose, and minor skin troubles. Chronic cases of dry or moist scaly eczema require both the ointment and liquid to effect a cure. At all drug stores. Trial size, 50c. Recommended and guaranteed by Piper Pharmacy.

SWORDS OF JAPAN.

Religious Rites In Their Making and a Final Blessing.

That the Japanese are past masters in the art of sword making is proved by the splendid weapons, equal to those of Toledo and Damascus, which they turn out. The actual methods of sword making in Japan are jealously guarded, an extraordinary feature of the industry being the religious ceremony which accompanies every process of their manufacture. The walls of every sword making shop in Japan will be found to be covered with allegorical representations of the sword makers and the [illegible] of the Shintos.

Evil spirits are kept away by charms consisting of bits of paper and wisps of straw, while, should any woman enter the shop, disaster would certainly come to the swords that are being made and to their makers. Consequently women are absolutely debarred from entering the business of sword makers. And not only is prayer offered up before the work is begun, but various religious rites peculiar to the Japanese are performed in order that the swords, when finally completed, may be said to have been well and truly made.

Even the final processes of polishing and sharpening are characterized by certain religious ceremonies, and finally the weapons are offered, one by one, to the sword god to be blessed. This ceremony consists in placing the swords in front of the goddess of the Shintos on the wall with an offering of sake, rice and sweetmeats, after which prayer scrolls are read and blessing upon the work is invoked.—Pearson's Weekly.

KEEP IN HARNESS.

Why It Is Dangerous to Retire From Active Work.

In Farm and Fireside Dr. David E. Spahr gives some advice to workers who are planning to retire from their callings and enjoy a peaceful old age.

"The abrupt change from an active member of the producing class to an idle member of the consuming class," he says, "is too much for a man who is facing the setting sun. And just here is the excuse and reason for this article. I want to sound a note of warning to those contemplating such a move—'Safety first.'

"For a man in declining life whose arteries are already beginning to harden from indulging in rich and stimulating food the change should be made gradually, allowing his system to accustom itself gradually to the changed conditions. A lessened amount of rich and stimulating food should be indulged in. Regular hours must be maintained, regular exercises that will bring into play and actively all the different muscles of the body in order to insure the elimination of the waste products of the body.

"A sedentary life, inactive and purposeless, with nothing to live for, no object in view but to live and eat and wait and waste away, with a lessened income and greater expense, with more and greater demand upon the purse strings—how great the temptation to become restless, nervous and irritable."

Tires Must Be Matched.

The Scientific American calls attention to a common cause of rear axle troubles, the same being the variation in diameter of different makes of tires. Though these are theoretically 34 by 4 inches, in practice they vary as much as half an inch and sometimes even more. Some of the results of the use of odd tires are oil leaking from the rear axle case and the brake drum of the wheel with the smaller tire, difficulties in steering and tires wearing unevenly. The moral, of course, is that tires of the same type and make should be used on wheels of the same axle.

Hugo and His Disciple.

A young man, an admirer of the great poet, attended one of Victor Hugo's receptions, became engaged in argument and lost his temper. Hugo solemnly rebuked him, and he subsided. Presently the guests retired. One of them, however, had forgotten his umbrella and returned to get it. Looking through an open door from the vestibule, he perceived the young man on his knees before the poet, sobbing out his apologies for his disrespect, while Victor Hugo, with almost regal dignity, extended his hand to him and bade him rise.

R. L. Stevenson and Women.

It may perhaps be recalled that it was to the late Dr. Trudeau that Stevenson once admitted that he felt he had been rash when he promised a lady over the dinner table that he would put a real woman into his next book. "I've often wondered, Stevenson," said the doctor, "but never thought to ask, why do you never put a real woman in a story?" "Good heavens, Trudeau," was the reply, "when I have tried I find she talks like a grenadier!"—Westminster Gazette.

Only a Poser.

"He isn't a true Bohemian," said the poet. "He's a poseur."

"How do you know?" asked the artist.

"Huh!" snorted the poet, with fine scorn. "I don't believe he owes a cent in the world!"—Dallas News.

"I understand your daughter is learning to cook."

"Yes, she's learning, but she says she hopes it will be a trade she'll never have to work at."—Detroit Free Press.

TALISMAN OF THE CELTS.

Romance of the Lia Fail, a Curious Piece of Stone.

In every strongly Irish newspaper, either in America or in Ireland, there is the oft repeated threat: "Wait until we recover the Lia Fail. Then Ireland will become a republic." And the readers have asked again and again: "What is the Lia Fail? Where is it and what is its magic power?" Those who remember the Fenian fiasco some years ago, will recall the battlecry of the troops, "Ho, for the Lia Fail!" The recovery of this Celtic talisman, however, would involve something more than a victory over some outlying province of Great Britain, for it is a part of the coronation chair in Westminster Abbey. It is a curious piece of stone, a little more than two feet long, and is said to be the identical stone on which Jacob rested his head when he had his marvelous dream. It was taken to Ireland, according to tradition, before the Christian era, and its removal from that island meant the death of liberty and independence to the Celt.

After a century of possession it was conveyed to the Ionian islands, to be used in a coronation ceremony, and was never recovered. The kings of Scotland seized and held it as their mascot. By Edward I. it was carried to London among the spoils of war when the Scottish kingdom began to totter. The son of Edward attempted to restore the stone to the Scotch, but already it had taken such hold on the superstition of the English that they feared for their country, and a mob prevented its restoration.—Exchange.

COLORS OF METEORS.

Three Stages Through Which They Pass to Reach the Earth.

An article by Alfred Wegener in the Scientific American offers an explanation of the marked difference of color observed in meteors. Up to an altitude of about forty-five miles the principal constituent of the earth's atmosphere is nitrogen. A second stratum of the atmosphere, extending up to about 125 miles, consists mainly of hydrogen. Still higher, Wegener himself has sought to prove the existence of a stratum consisting of an excessively light gas which he calls "geocoronium."

When entering the atmosphere from outer space meteors do not become luminous in the very tenuous "geocoronium sphere," but only when they enter the "hydrogen sphere," and most of them are dissipated before reaching the nitrogen atmosphere. The largest fireballs, however, penetrate deeper and may reach the earth or explode not far above it.

Dr. Wegener finds that the meteors that penetrate deep enough pass through three color stages—viz. yellow-white, green and deep red. The great majority exhibit only the first stage, in which the color (white, yellow, sometimes reddish) is that of the incandescent meteor itself. The green stage Wegener believes to be due to the incandescence of the hydrogen through which the meteor is passing, while the deep red stage is due to the incandescence of nitrogen in the lower atmosphere.

Thrill of Being Wet.

There is something rudimentary and fundamental about having water splashed down upon one and getting completely and deliciously wet—not damp, not moist, but wet, wringing wet. You yourself when a child never enjoyed anything so much as your first drenching in an unforeseen and unavoidable rainstorm—the thrill of being wet, the cool drive of the water on your nose, into your sleeves and down your neck, and the joyous slush of soaked, water logged boots. Even the tedium of being rubbed with alcohol, bundled up and warned you would catch your death did not diminish the event. You voted it better than the time you fell off the boat dock; it lasted longer.—Atlantic.

Criticism Implied.

"He doesn't like my cooking," sobbed the three months bride, a tear on her long lashes. "I just know he doesn't. So there!"

"What makes you think so?" her mother asked. "Has he said he doesn't like your cooking?"

"No-no-o," stammered the bride.

"Nonsense, child. It's just your imagination. I felt there was no basis"—

"There is a basis," the bride insisted tearfully. "I had been cooking the loveliest things for him for about two weeks, and then he told me he had decided to become a raw food faddist. Bo-boo-o-oo!"—Judge.

Dr. Johnson's Homeliness.

Samuel Johnson was himself—and this is a quality rarely found in "plain" men—under no illusion as to his personal appearance. Dr. Burney tells us that on one occasion while Miss Burney was examining his portrait he peeped over her shoulder and, with a ludicrous half laugh, exclaimed: "Ah, ha, Sam Johnson! I see thee—and an ugly dog thou art!"—London Times.

Force of Habit.

"The idea of that upstart talking back as he did to a society favorite! And they do say he was one time only a butler."

"Maybe that is why he was so quick to answer the belle."—Baltimore American.

All Alike.

The following entry appears in the "visitors' book" of a hotel in Germany: "The living here is good, plain and substantial. So is the waitress."

fused. Next he tried England. The British government consented to the sale of the guns to her allies, but at that time could not guarantee to purchase all that Col. Lewis could manufacture, so he went to Belgium, where he was given orders without restrictions. Final delivery was only twenty days before the war broke out. The Belgians were the only soldiers having the Lewis guns. The English army is supplied from the Birmingham factory. France will receive the gun in large quantities as soon as the new Etienne plant is ready. In their wonderful defense of Liege the Belgian Army is said to have used the Lewis' gun.

Talleyrand's Mean Joke.

Mme. de Talleyrand had the name of being as stupid as she was handsome, and her husband took a manly pleasure in leading her on to the commission of the most amazing blunders for the amusement of their guests. One day, for instance, when Denon, one of the savants whom Bonaparte had taken in his train on the expedition to Egypt, was to dine with them, Talleyrand told his wife that he was a traveler of note, whose last book he would give her to read. At dinner, Denon was at first delighted by the accuracy and discrimination of the compliments which Mme. de Talleyrand paid him, but she soon gave such feeling pause by saying: "And that good fellow Friday—what a comfort he must have been to you!" Talleyrand had given her "Robinson Crusoe" to read.

ONE OF SEASON'S BEST BOXING SHOWS ARRANGED

Babe Picato and Dick DeSanders to Face Each Other Saturday—All-Star Preliminaries Booked in Which Pittsburgers Will Engage.

"Babe" Picato's last 10-round fight with Frankie Dailey of Latrobe in Cleveland this week will not unfit him for a hard encounter when he meets Dick DeSanders of Pittsburg in Charleroi Saturday night. In fact, Picato's work in Cleveland is expected to put him on edge for the Charleroi battle. He held his heavier opponent to a draw, Cleveland critics declare, after Dailey, through his superior weight and cleverness, had earned the advantage on points in the first five rounds. This shows that Picato possesses plenty of strength and recuperative powers, and they probably will be tested to the utmost in his coming battle with the tough little Pittsburger.

The Charleroi club has arranged the best preliminary card of the season in that boxing center. Battling Schultz of Monessen will mix with Joe Kattell of Pittsburg in the semi-final and this promises to be a real fight. The second bout will bring out Eddie Neill of Donora and George McFarland of Pittsburg, two of the hardest hitters in Western Pennsylvania, while Al Clark and Tommy Levine will put on the first skit.

It is possible that a neutral referee will be agreed upon and if so probably Pete Mauthe, the State College man who officiated last Friday night at the Monessen game here will be selected. The blue and black boys from Washington are coming well prepared, though one of their best men is out with a cold. Saturday night Charleroi is to play at Canonsburg and later a return game will be played at Washington.
